1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to an electro-optical apparatus such as a projector. 2. Description of the Related Art In recent years, a projector (also referred to as a display apparatus or a video apparatus) which displays an image (or a picture image or a video image) formed by an image forming apparatus such as a personal computer on a screen has been widespread. Such a projector generates light (projected light) based on image information, and enlarges and projects the generated light on a screen or the like. The projector is incorporated in a small-size portable apparatus such as a notebook personal computer. Such a projector needs to be able to display a high-quality image (picture) at a desired position on a screen. To achieve such a high image quality, it is important to accurately adjust a light axis and a convergence angle of light projected on the screen. To accurately adjust the light axis and the convergence angle of light projected on the screen, it is important to accurately detect the position of the projected light on the screen. To accurately detect the position of the projected light on the screen, it is important to accurately detect a position of a projected light shielding pattern (brightness shielding pattern) which is projected on the screen in advance. Japanese Patent Laid-Open No. 2008-206159 has proposed a projector which illuminates an optical element with light to form an image of the projected light on a screen. The projector disclosed in Japanese Patent Laid-Open No. 2008-206159 includes a brightness shielding pattern on the screen on which a projected light is imaged. In a general projector, the brightness shielding pattern is formed on the screen by a printing method or a die coating method, and the brightness shielding pattern is formed in a shape of a frame or a trapezoid. The brightness shielding pattern is formed on a diffusion plate or an incandescent wire by a wire-cutting method or a metal die-coating method. The brightness shielding pattern is formed in a shape of a bar or a trapezoid by a photolithography method. The brightness shielding pattern is formed in a circular shape or a trapezoid shape by an electron beam exposure method. As described above, the brightness shielding pattern is formed by various methods. However, none of these methods uses a process utilizing a semiconductor process. For this reason, there is a possibility that a defect is caused in the brightness shielding pattern during the production process. In some cases,
